

ABSTRACT

A joint for a panel, the joint including a first edge and a second edge. The first edge includes a groove while the second edge is provided with a tongue. The second edge further includes an upper side groove. A joining profile is provided with a tongue and an intermediate section, the joining profile being so configured so as to allow it to be located in the upper portion of the joint between two, joined, adjacent panels.